ABSTRACT

The Advanced Placement Program of the College Entrance Examination Board provides a practical way for schools and colleges to create and use common definitions of college-level courses, which, when completed in secondary school, prepare students for advanced study at college. In each field committees of examiners write course descriptions and construct the 3-hour qualifying examinations. It is hoped that participating colleges will be willing to grant advanced placement or credit, or both, to candidates who receive qualifying grades. In December 1971 the College Board sent a questionnaire to colleges and universities familiar with the program, seeking information on their advanced placement policies for freshmen entering in the fall of 1972. This book contains the information received in response to the questionnaire. The colleges offer the rough outlines of their advanced placement policies and the names of those officials to whom more detailed inquiry may be sent. (Author/HS)

Introduction

The Advanced Placement Program of the College Entrance Examination Board provides a practical way for schools and colleges to create and use common definitions of college-level courses which, when completed in secondary school, prepare students for advanced study at college. In each field committees of examiners—teachers from participating schools and colleges—write course descriptions and construct the three-hour qualifying examinations that are graded (again by school and college teachers) according to this scale: 5—extremely well qualified; 4—well qualified; 3—qualified; 2—possibly qualified; 1—no recommendation.

All the examinations require essays and the solution of problems. They also include objective questions to ensure reliability, breadth, and comparability with former years. A student's grade is a composite judgment based on the entire examination. The parts of each examination are weighted as the examiners require, so the final grade is not a simple average of the part scores, nor is it derived exclusively from the essays or problems. Colleges are sent students' essay booklets and supporting materials in July each year.

It is hoped that participating colleges will be willing to grant advanced placement or credit, or both, to candidates who receive grades of 3 or higher and will review the examinations of those students who receive grades of 2. But each college determines what action it will take on the grades it receives.

In December 1971 the College Board sent a questionnaire to colleges and universities familiar with the program, seeking information on their Advanced Placement policies for freshmen entering in the fall of 1972. This book contains the information received in response to the questionnaire. The colleges offer the rough outlines of their Advanced Placement policies and the names of those officials to whom more detailed inquiries may be sent. The colleges and universities are arranged alphabetically according to their full names. At the end of the book there is a listing of the colleges according to their geographical locations.

The following considerations should be kept in mind by every reader.

1. The Advanced Placement Examination grades listed here are the lowest that the institutions normally accept as evidence of college-level work already done. Many colleges grant these grades automatic recognition, which may be given in a variety of forms, depending on the policy of the college. Generally students receive advanced placement or course credit, or a combination of both. Specific college catalogs should be consulted for details. However, other colleges make occasional, or even frequent, exceptions to the policies listed here.

2. On the other hand, many colleges also honor grades other than those they have listed here, some occasionally and others frequently. But again no general assurance can be given on this point.

3. The listing of an x instead of a grade means only that the college declines to offer assurance of normal recognition of any examination grade in that subject. In some cases no such recognition is now offered; in others recognition is possible, but additional means are employed to determine it—generally local placement tests or interviews.

Therefore, while this book does afford students and authorities in their schools a general overview of the Advanced Placement Program at American colleges, individual students and their counselors should also consult colleges' detailed catalog statements and the officials listed here.

Symbols used in this book

An asterisk (*) denotes that a college is a formal participant in the Advanced Placement Program, that is:

1. It has an officer, listed in this book and in its appropriate publications, who is responsible for the development and administration of Advanced Placement policy.

2. It regularly reports its Advanced Placement decisions to the candidates and their schools.

3. The college returns, upon a school's request, students' Advanced Placement essay booklets to their secondary school.

4. It normally grants appropriate advanced placement or credit, or both, to students presenting Advanced Placement Examination grades of 3 (and higher) either in 70 percent or more of the Program's examinations or in those examinations which accounted for 70 percent or more of the Program's candidacies at the previous administration.

A dagger (†) denotes that a college does not find School Reports necessary and therefore does not require them of Advanced Placement candidates. The School Report describes the student's advanced work, his course grade, and his school's recommendation for college credit, advanced placement, or both. The College Board regularly makes School Report Forms available to Advanced Placement Coordinators at participating schools for completion and transmission directly to students' colleges.

For an explanation of the listing of x instead of a grade, see Introduction.
